NEW YORK, May 29, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- Atomi, Inc. (www.atominy.com (<http://www.atominy.com/>)) today released their new Charge Station universal charging dock featuring 3 USB ports, a weighted base, and illuminated dividers for an elegant take on surge-protected charging and storage. Made from high-quality ABS plastic, the Atomi Charge Station consists of two 2.1 amps outputs and one 1 amp output for the ability to charge up to three devices at the same time. Plus, the dividers keep cables and devices neat and organized and look great doing it.

Today, the average U.S. household owns over five Internet connected devices and Atomi's Charge Station helps to solve the problems of how to keep these devices powered and how to keep them easy to locate.

"Atomi has always been dedicated to finding functional and creative solutions for connectivity," said Steve Beda, Vice President of Atomi. "The Charge Station continues that tradition with a stylish answer to the problem of charging multiple devices."

The Charge Station is compatible with all USB powered devices, displaying each device neatly in individual dividers on a space-conscious weighted base that fits easily on any nightstand, desk, or table. Add in the five-foot cord and charging can occur from almost anywhere. The dividers themselves light up for a sleek effect that also allows for each device to be found easily, day or night.

The Atomi Charge Station is now available at Bed Bath & Beyond.

Features:

- 3 USB ports compatible with all USB powered devices
- Illuminated dividers
- 5-foot power cord
- 400 joules of surge protection
- 5.2 amps of power
- Rubber surface and weighted base
- High quality ABS plastic
